

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The present invention provides a printer device which is capable of, when there is no frame in which print control information is written exist in a storage medium such as a memory card, notifying a user by displaying a message to that effect on a display unit. A printer device comprises a mode setting unit capable of setting a print control mode in which print control information written corresponding to image information is read; a judging unit for judging whether or not a frame in which predetermined print control information is written exists when the print control mode is set; and a display control unit for displaying a message that the print control information is not set in any frame when it is judged that the print control information is not set in any frame.